CARE is a national, nonprofit, locally powered financial literacy program that uses financial experts (bankruptcy judges, lawyers, financial professionals) to teach young adults the basics of personal finance. Volunteers visit schools and give presentations on credit, budgeting, student loans, and more. Our first-hand experience as industry practitioners provides unique perspective on major impacts of financial decisions. We provide real-life examples to help students avoid pitfalls that can jeopardize their ability to meet their goals.

There is no cost to schedule a CARE presentation or to use CARE materials. We have a fantastic team in Denver and we welcome the chance to discuss how we can help teachers and students this school year.
